The Weeses were a very old family throughout Ontario, as I am informed they settled there in 1783 from New York. However I would like to know more about Ira Weese, as he lived in Kingston for some time as it was Kingston where my grandmother Janet Weese was born. Her sister Matilda who married John Lane lived near Ottawa. With so many of the Weese family being departed it makes it so much more difficult to get data on them.

Yours truly

P.S. Both the Lanes and Weese's were very old families of Ontario

Dear Dr. Burleigh,-

Many thanks for your kind and interesting note of July the eighteenth regarding the folder. I'm so sorry you had to make a second trip in my behalf. But delighted you are so pleased with the Delmage, Williams,
and Wescott material.

The folder arrived safely to-day
Many, many thanks for your enlightening addition in the back of the book. I shall pass this information on to my sister Mrs Hawcutt,

who will be very happy to receive it.
The only regret will be, she did not have the pleasure of meeting you as I did,
for I am sure you would have had much in common on the subject of genealogy.

The pages you requested from the Price Genealogy will be following shortly. I regret I'm not as prompt as you.

Our lives were made the richer by our visit to your lovely home.

Mrs Burleigh is a most unusual and fascinating person. We shall make it a point to visit her collection at the museum
the next time we are in the vicinity.

Thanks for a most enjoyable afternoon.

Kindest regards and Best Wishes

Copies of correspondence received by Alice Delmage Fawcett from Ireland

My first communication was sent to the Post-master at Rathkeale for information. He wrote the following reply.

Dear Miss Delmage,

Yours to hand of March 28th. Would have written sooner but my wife was not well, as she could make out of what we wanted to know better than me, as she stands in closer relationship to the Captain than I do that was Julius Delmege of whom you spoke. He had several daughters married in different parts of Ireland. He had a son Julius who practised at the bar. He removed to Dublin and died there. Some of his children are there yet. But I want you to tell me, did you ever hear of Dr. Gideon Delmege. He was another son of the Captain. That was what we always called him. I remember him well. Then could you make of your grandfather's, Joseph Sampson Delmage's mother's maiden name. That would help me to make sure of following up and not make any mistake. The old people are dropping off. My Mother-in-law whose father was a sister's son of the Captain is dead. But for that I might be more accurate, also Toby and family are gone. The Counselor Christopher, a brother of the Captain is dead long since. His daughter was married to Dan Mannsell, Esq. of this place where I live. She is dead too.

I will soon be gone too. In the meantime if you can let me know those questions it will help me, and I will do my best to trace your nearest relatives in Ireland.

Waiting your reply I remain

Yours ever

Dear Miss Delmage

I would have answered your letter before now but looking for information.

If you had wrote 20 years ago, my father was alive then and he could have told you all about your relatives, better than I could. The fact is , there isn't a Delmege about the vicinity of Rathkeale at present only myself and my sister. All of the rest are dead and gone before my recollection. To begin with, your nearest ancestry, Julius and Christopher. The former was a captain of the army, and father of the Julius that lived at Rathkeale. He was an attorney. He had two brothers Tobias and James. Tobias had one daughter and she died in England a couple of years ago. Her son died about twenty-five years ago. He was a Doctor James. Family went to America sometime about the time your grandfather went. There was a law-suit between his children. Which way it went I don't know. But the family you are nearest connected with are in Dublin. They are the Attorney's family. His widow's name was Belina Lake I heard she died some time back. The only one that could give you any information about them would be James O'Grady Delmege, Esq. of Castle Park, Limerick. There is some property in and about Rathkeale. Who is managing it for them I don't know.

I remain yours faithfully

Robert Delmage.

My dear Miss Delmage,

As I know now, whom I am addressing, I become more familiar. You will excuse me in not writing sooner, but I must let you know, that I am a land steward on General Mannsells property at Ballywilliam. He is living in England, so I have the entire care of the place. There was a lot of timber down for an auction, so I was very busy fixing the lots for sale.

Well now to commence, the Captain had three sons, your grandfather I did not know. Julius the lawyer who went to Dublin, when his father the Captain deceased, He Julius lived in Rathkeale. Gideon was a Doctor in the army and abroad. Your grandfather in America. His daughter's are married and away. The Captain had a will made, but the clever lawyer burned all the papers in the Captain's safe, even the very deed of where he was living, so that he may come in for it himself as the will cut him out. The Captain did not like the lady he married. He never let her inside his door until his death, which was sudden. We don't know where Gideon is, as he never came back after. The Captain's daughters were, Margaret who married to a clergyman, Rebecca was married in Jeder, and Julina married in Galway, another I don't remember her name, is the one who left for America. There is the Captain's family so far as I know. I can remember him well. My father's name was James Delmage. I had one brother, He went to Australia, and passing on an inland steamer they were all lost. The names of the Captain's brothers were, James, Toby and Christopher. He, Christopher became counsellor, and made well. His daughter was married to Dan Mannsell, ^{both dead, Mary Ann as it fell to} so I am here now as manager. My wife is a great granddaughter of the Captain's sister Mary. I have no son but one daughter living. She is down in County Cavan, married. There is no one of this name ~~in~~ at present in Court Matrix the original place. Toby lived there but left no son. One daughter married to a doctor. She had ^{only} no son. He died so she sold and went to Dublin. Very old if she still lives. Don't know about Julius' family. Did not enquire about them, as he done a mean thing

His brother General Mannell

at the slightest in destroying his father's papers. Don't know but his family may be going to mass now. While the Captain lived he would not let him. His wife was a Catholic. In Court Matrix there is one man and sister John, son of William a weaver known as Hutch, and one in Kilkeen. son of Jacob by the name of Gansey. That is all here. No one relatives of mine about the place. All gone to the Dominion, about Toronto Generally but could not tell where they are, as they have ceased to write. Where Mr. Boyle got the five names I do not know.

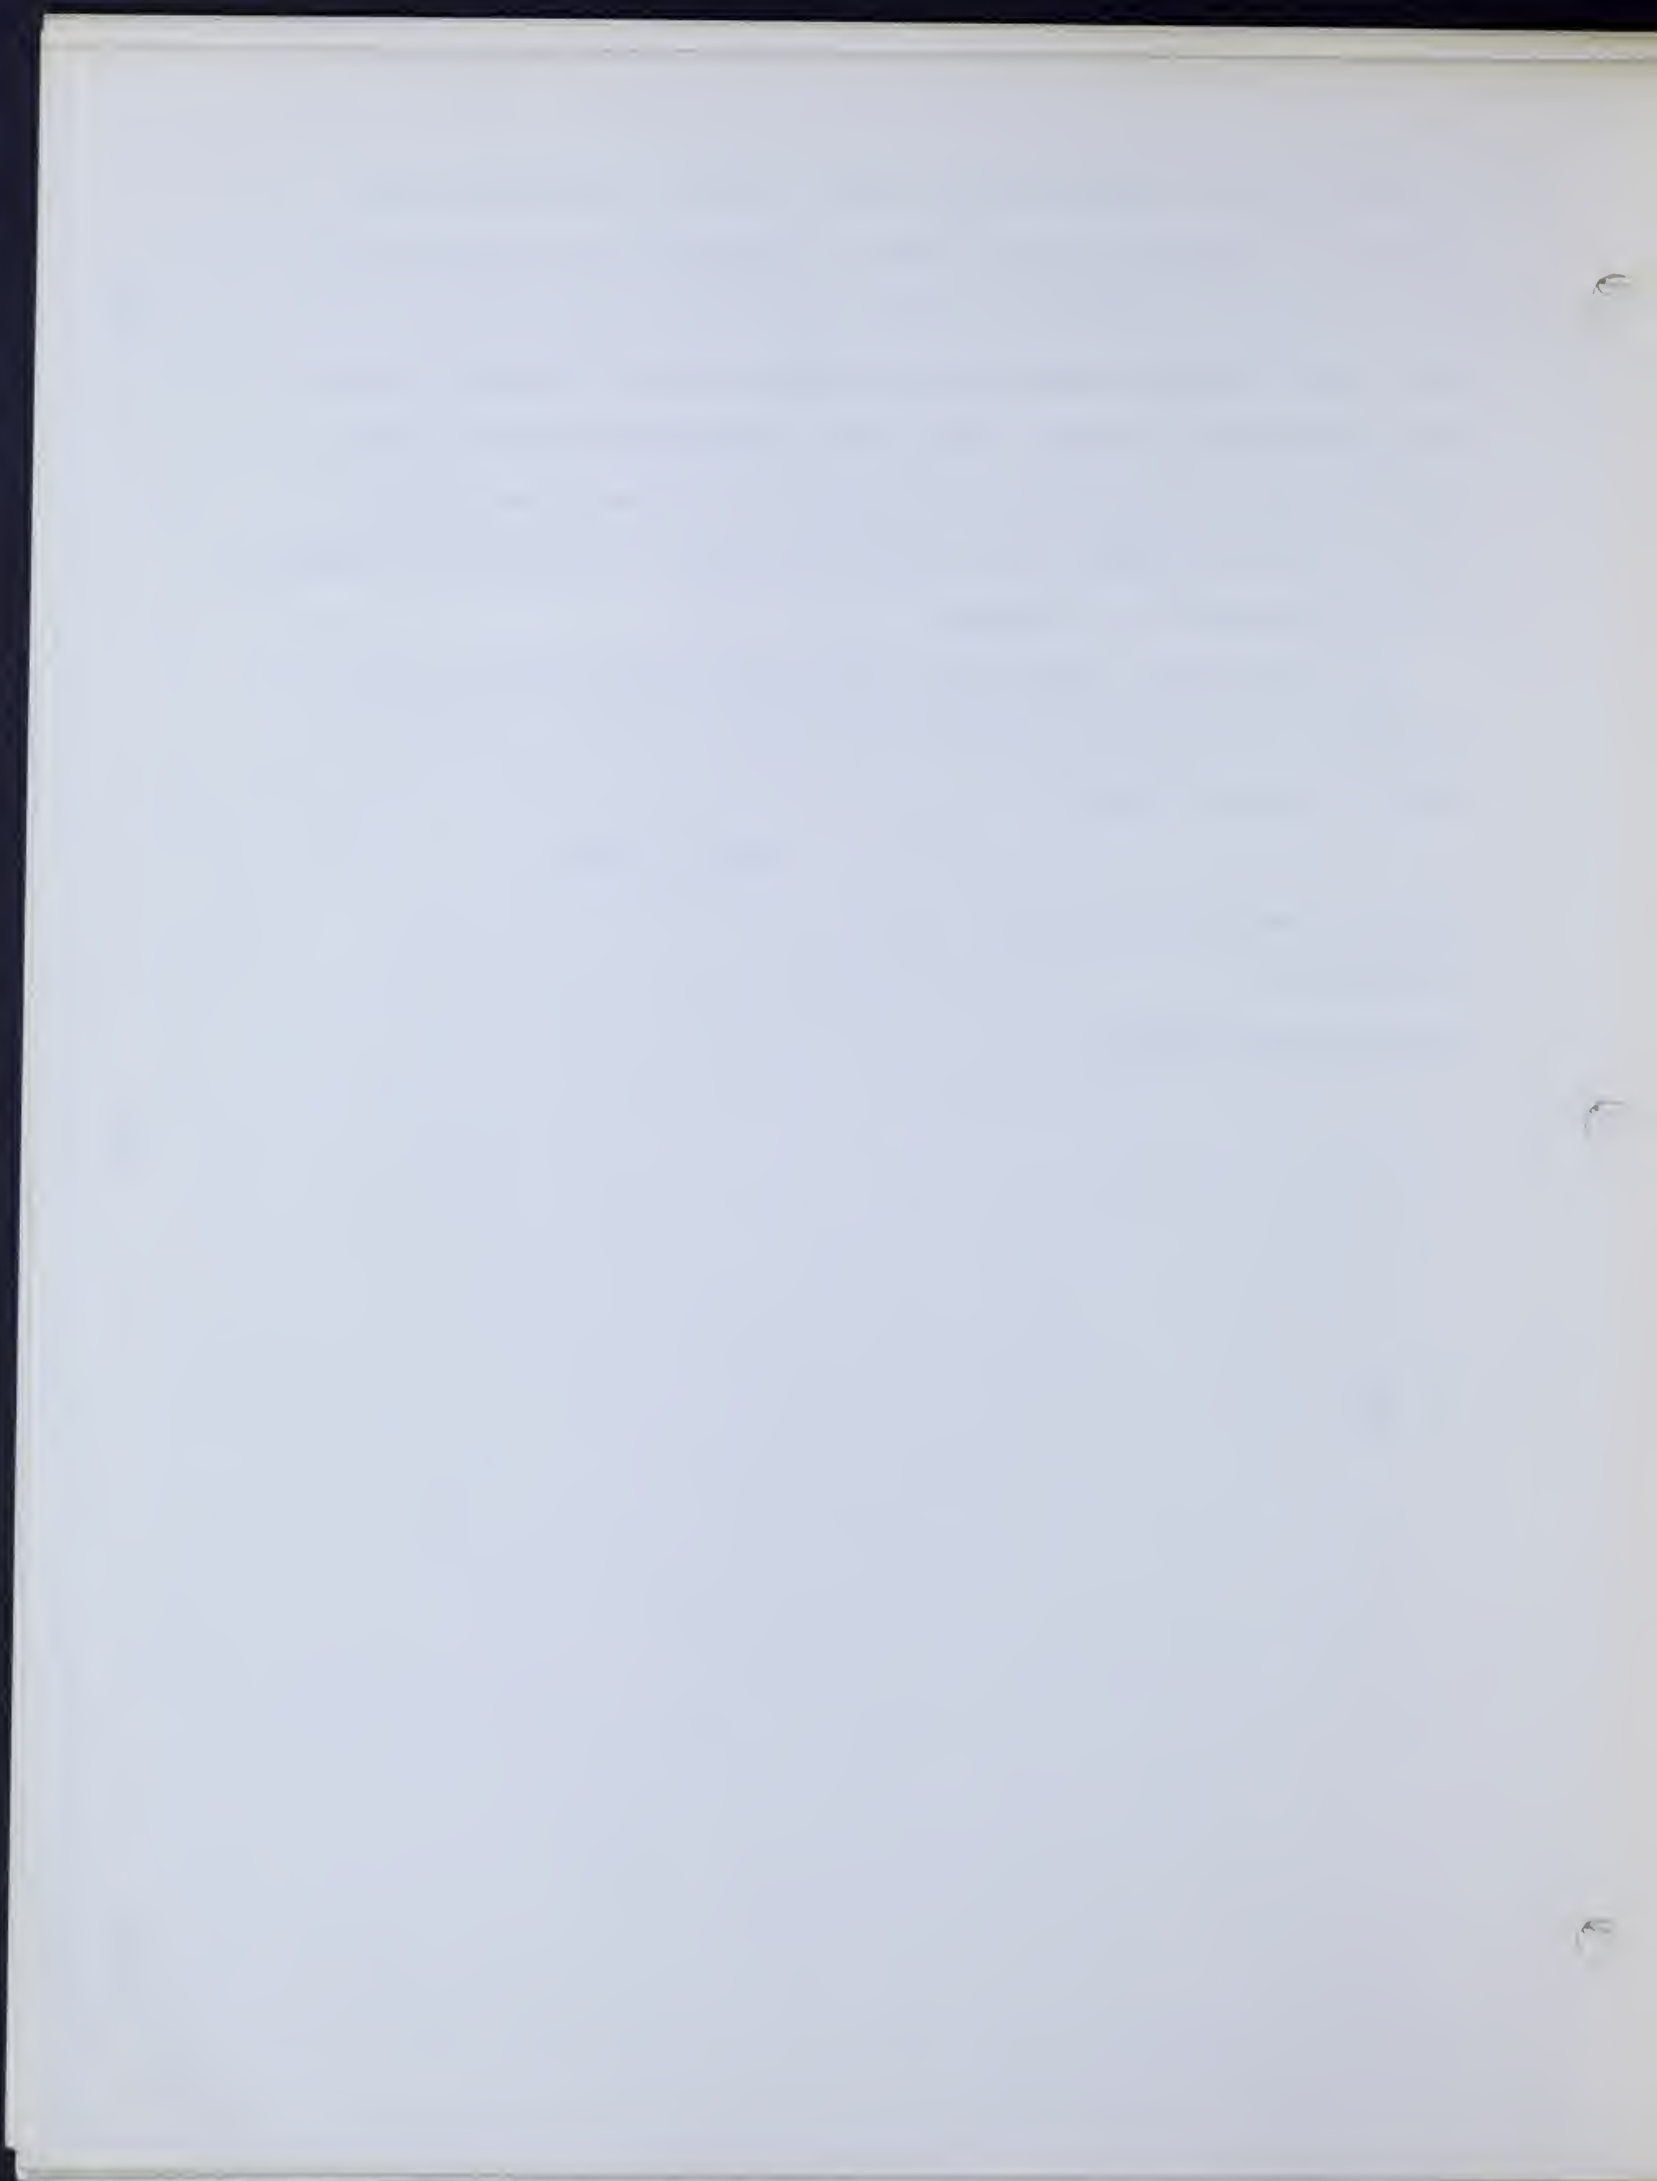

I am now closing eighty years. I am still strong thank God, but I am so hurried now you will excuse this. I was glad to get a line from your father. Believe me yours,

Jacob Delmage

Hoping to hear from you again,

May 8, 1904

Dear Miss Delmage;

You will have to excuse me for being so long silent. I was trying to get a book, "The coming of the Palatines to Ireland" to send to you. My wife had one, but it was mislaid. We can't know where it is. I hope to get one which I will send on to you as soon as I can get it. In the meantime, if you can get Goldsmith's "History of England" there ought to be an account of bringing the Palatines to England by Queen Ann. Louis of France fought and conquered the Palatinate of the Rhine a very rich and beautiful providence. They being Protestants, he persecuted them. To all intents, some of them fled to the Duke of Marlboro camp. In the year 1709 Queen Ann sent a Fleet to Rotterdam and brought about 7000 of them to England. They were placed under canvas at Camberwell and Blackheath Commons. Three thousand were sent to Pennsylvania, being then a Brittish settlement. About 4000 in Ireland. It is supposed about a thousand on Lord Southwell's estate. 20 families at Court Matrix, 20 at Thallsheene and 50 05 52 at Ballingiane. Our name was not spelled at all as it is now. You know it had to be brought into the Anglican form. That accounts for the difference in many letters, but still it is the same name. Now as to the provisions made, Queen Ann bought Lord Southwell's estate giving to each man a lot 8 acres free of rent. The people were so simple and this Lord so kind to them that he drew leasses for two and three lives at two shillings and six pence per acre. They signed them and were caught. Then he doubled and doubled the rent, until they were not able to pay it, had to emigrate to America and elsewhere. Your family came over with the rest in 1709. One family of each name settled in this place. I could give you all the names, but as I hope to send you the book, you will find all in it. I may have a delay but I hope finally to get it, and will send it on direct to you, and very glad to be able to give you so much information. The house where the Captain lived and died is simply called The Cottage, no number. It is near the Castle of Castle Matrix Mills. It is not in possession of one regent. If I have omitted anything, I will let you know again.

The climate in Ireland is altogether changed. This winter and spring almost a constant down pour of rain. Very unhealthy and many dying. I got some kind of a cold. Was some time laid up with it, but am all right now. thank God. I will now say goodbye for the present. Give my best love to your father, and all the family. Except the same yourself. My wife she ~~joins with me~~ joins with me. Believe me yours ever affectionate

In Germany they spell it Delmadge.

Note by Alice Fawcett.

Jane Delmage was burried under a large oak tree, which stood along the shore of the St. Lawrence ~~river~~ River which stood in a large blooming pea field, a short distance from the city of Quebec. The captain of the ship being a friend of the family had toed the remains behind his ship in a life boat, until he got almost into Quebec. He would not be allowed to land his ship with the dead body so he took Joseph and a few crew in life boats and went to shore, leaving his ship anchored in mid stream and burried Jane. When they returned to the ship most of Jane's belongings had been stolen, during their absence. Her Bible with her own hand writing "Jane Delange" was later given to Joseph's eldest child Mary Jane Delmage(Clancy.) The one side of the Oak tree was blazed and her name carved, and the date of her death, ~~and name of ship~~ 1844. Joseph Sampson Delmage lies beside his wife in the Clancy Delmage Hinch vault at Newburgh, Ontario, Canada.

My Dear Miss Delmage

I was glad to hear you and all your family are well. Sorry indeed of the accident which happened to your grand-parents. 'Tis well to be ready, no one knows the day or hour when the call comes. Ye must be thrown into great fright, your mother especially. We are all passing away.

Well, I must congratulate you on your intended marriage, praying the union may be crowned with every blessing in this life, and that which is to come. You say he is a religious man. That entails all the rest and that you may be blessed in all your undertakings.

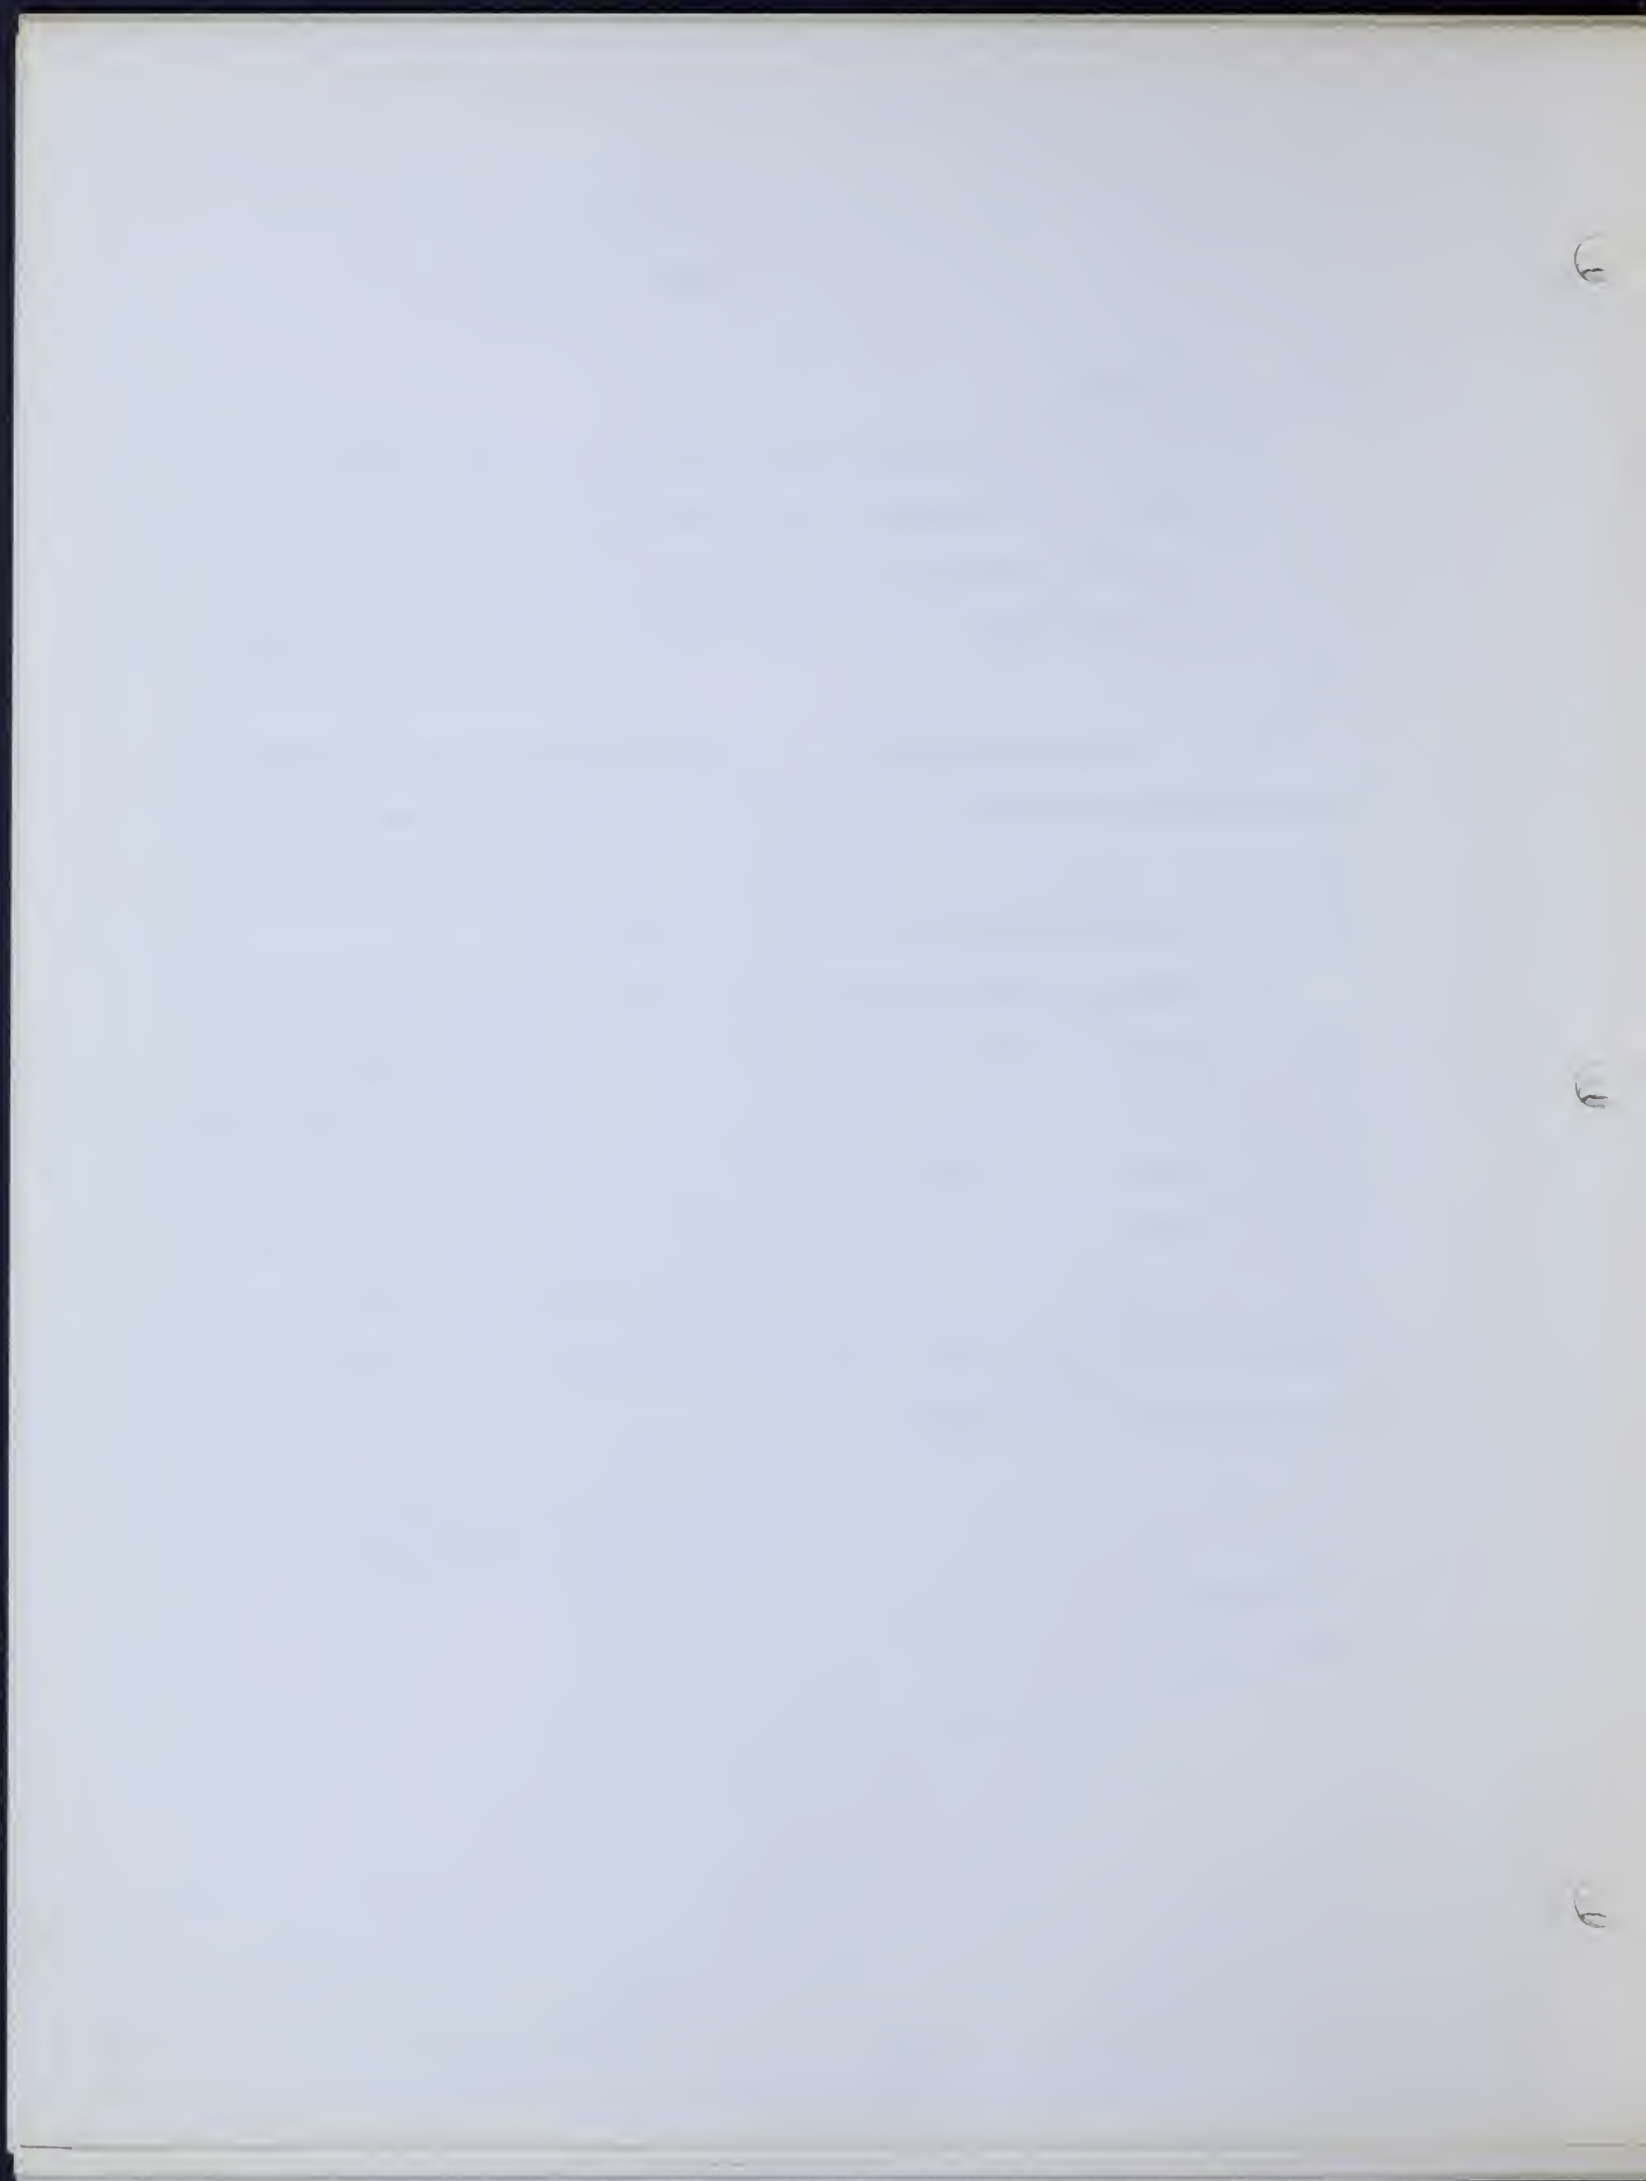

The spring and summer here has been very wet, hard to save hay and crops, which throws more work on me, but can't be helped. I have not got the book yet. It's so long out of print, its hard to get it. I am making the best search for it I can. I hope it will come but must have patience. I am in a hurry and won't say much, hoping to hear from you when settled down. Just sending you and all the family our greetings, we remain ~~our~~ your ever sincere welwishers. Except our best love. Give the same to all the members of the family.

Yours Ever

Miss Alice Delmage

Milsap, Ontario, Canada

Dear Madam;

Your letter of May 8th, 1903 has recently been sent to me by my cousin James O'Grady Delmege of Castle Park, he considering, no doubt, that I am the proper person to reply to it, as I am the eldest surviving grandson of Captain Julius Delmege, who was the eldest son of Captain Adam Dolmage, ~~who~~ ~~died in 1801~~ of Court Lodge Co. Limerick, my great grandfather. Adam Dolmage, who died in 1901, had five sons, the first born being Julius my grandfather. He was born in 1772, and while serving with his regiment in the Channel Islands met his only wife Susanne Phelipps deGorrequer, and they were married at St. Brelades Church, Jersey, on the 17th of July 1799. A few years later he retired from service, and settled down on a place belonging to him, about a mile from the town of Rathkeale. I was born in 1838, and remember both my grandparents well. They lived most happily together, had two sons and three daughters, and both died in the same year, 1848, and I saw them placed at rest. My grandfather was a much respected gentleman, highly thought of by every one, and I never heard the slightest word of reproach to his memory. May I venture to say, until I received your communication my father born December 1800 was the eldest son, Julius. He was married in 1833, and had several children, I being the eldest surviving. His only brother Gideon, was an officer in the army. He also married and left a son since dead. My three Aunts also married to gentlemen of good position. Mr. Robert Delmege of Killheen Reens, who I now hear of for the first time, was quite correct in stating that my father belonged to the legal profession. He inherited my Grandfather's property, and had property of his own in County Kilkenny. You ask as to my Grandfather's other brothers. Next to him came Tobias. He lived at Court Lodge, the life of a country gentleman, took his father's place in the local yeomanry, and died in 1858 a very old gentleman. The next brother was Christopher of Castle Park, who's grandson is the gentleman you addressed yourself too. The fourth brother was Captain James, once an officer 23rd Fusiliers. He is dead over thirty years. The youngest was the Reverend John. He left sons, died in 1874. I can tell you of no one in Canada, bearing the name of Delmage of whom I have any family knowledge. It may be right to make you aware that my Grandfather always retained the original spelling of the family name as did also his second son Gideon. My older brother Julius deGorreguor and I by the desire of my Grandfather entered the army under, and have always used the old spelling. The change to Delmege was made in 1817, by my great Uncle Christopher, his brothers(excepting my Grandfather) and my father following later in adopting it. My brother, Colonel Julius deGorrequer Dolmage, died in 1877. I have given you all the information in my power. My position as head of the family puts me in possession of all the records with the history of my race over 200 years. I can in no way find it possible to bring Mr. Joseph Sampson Delmage into this. All facts are absolutely against it, and at no period in my life, have I ever heard of Miss Elizabeth Miller.

I have ceased to reside in Dublin, and my Irish affairs are looked after for me by an agent. Had your letter come directly to me I would have answered sooner, possibly Mr. J. O'Grady Delmege quite aware of facts, did not like to send it on.

Believe me to be

Yours most faithfully

I.A.Dolmage.

Mr. I. A. Delmage
243 Cromwell Road
London, S.W., England

Dear Sir,

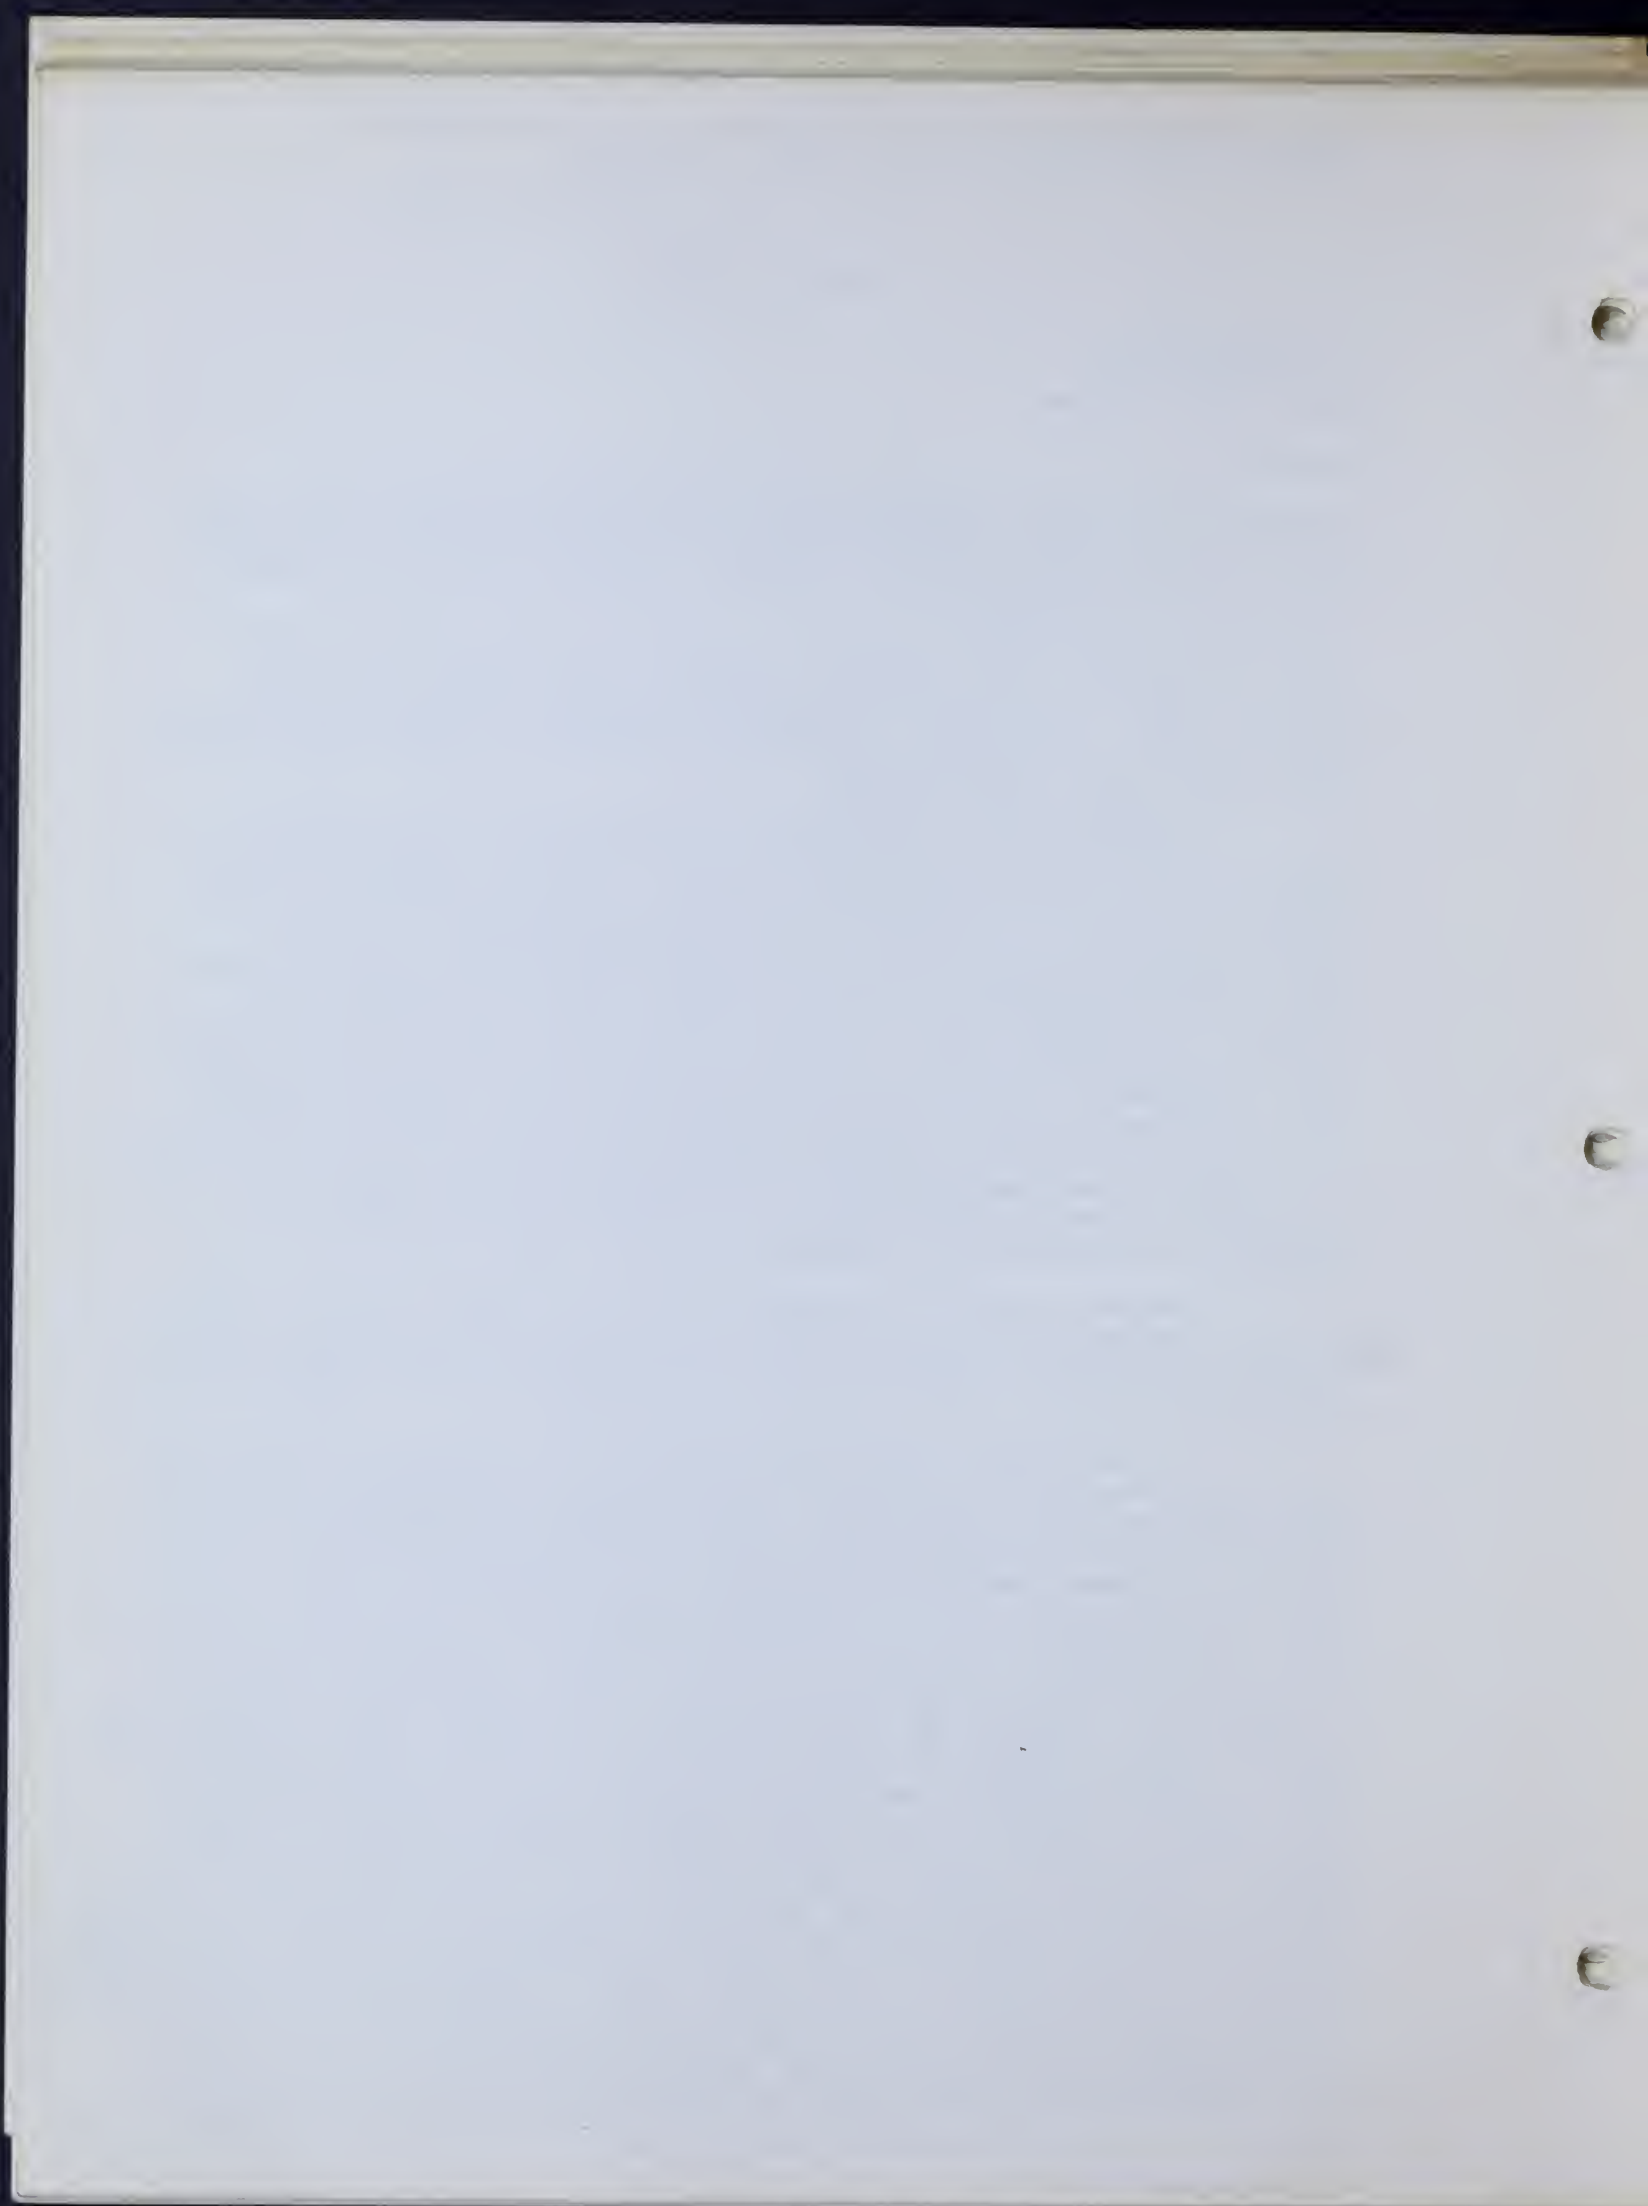

A copy of your very kind and welcome letter addressed to my daughter, Miss Alice A. Delmage on the 10th of October last is now before me, and in her absence take the liberty to convey to you our most sincere thanks for the valuable and much appreciated information it contained in reference to our ancestry.

For several years I have felt anxious to find some trace of my father's relatives, some of whom, I supposed to have emigrated to this country, and in order to do so, directed my daughter Alice, to write to the Post Master at Rathkeale, Limerick Co. Ireland, my father's birth-place, and ask him for the name and address of persons by the name Delmage, who might receive mail at this office.

In a short time she received the addresses of three different persons bearing that name, whereupon she sent a letter of inquiry to each giving what she knew of the family history. Mr. Jacob Delmage of Ballywilliam an old man over eighty years of age was the first to reply, and correspondence up to the present has been most satisfactory indeed. I think it was Mr. Robert Delmage of Killahen Reems that gave her the name and directed her to write to James O.G. Delmage for the information she desired. This letter was the one sent to you, which you so kindly answered on the 10th of October last. Mr. Jacob Delmage in a previous letter had asked my daughter if she could give him the name of her great-grandmother. So she asked me if I could tell her. I told her I did not know exactly for I never asked my father, and never remembered hearing him say. But the name of Elizabeth Miller was suggested to me as being the one, from the fact that I remembered of hearing when a boy as I supposed this name spoken of in connection with the family, and that is how my daughter came to make that statement.

Previous to my letter coming into my possession, I had no reason to doubt, but that I was the legitimate grandson of Captain Julius Delmage of Rathkeale, Limerick Co. Ireland. And I can assure you my dear Sir, that it will take considerable more than the evidence before me, to convince me that I am not.

Now in justice to myself and family and to the name that until the present, has been handed down to us untarnished for generations, I ask your kind indulgence while I give you my family history as I understood before my daughter began her correspondence. I knew that my grandfather was a much respected gentleman and that he belonged to a distinguished family. That he possessed considerable wealth both in money and real estate. That he bore the name of Captain; That his name was Julius, and that his residence was near the town of Rathkeale. I might say here that I might never have known my Grandfather's given name, had it not been that my second name was given me after him. I knew that my Grandfather had a son Julius, and a daughter Jane, and that Julius followed the legal profession, and that many years of his life, was spent in Dublin; and I knew also that there were other members in the family. With regard to my father's uncles, my grandfather's brothers, I knew of Tobias, Christopher and James. These were all I remember my father speak of. I knew that Tobias was an officer; for I often heard my father tell of doing some kind of patrol duty under him. I also knew that there was a family record kept, that extended back for several generations. All this I knew from hearing my father talk of it in my younger days. I might relate to you the circumstances under which my father came to this country, but it would occupy too much time. Suffice to say, that my father did not come to this country as an emigrant, nor did he expect it to be his permanent home. He came at the request of his parents with an invalid sister Jane, for the benefit of her health, intending to remain with a friend for a time, and then return to their native home. The young lady never reached port alive, but her remains were brought to Quebec for burial, out of respect for the family, by the Captain of the vessel. One of my sisters still has her Testament, with her name written therein with her own hand, Jane Delmage. That my father was the son of Captain Julius Delmage or Dolmage there can be no doubt, for in the days of my boyhood, I remember people visiting my father who knew him well, in Ireland. If these people were living today they could testify to its truth, but these old people have all long since gone to their rest.

The young lady's death wrought a great change in my father's history, and may have been the cause of leaving their names a blank in the family records. I should rather accept this theory than to place the reproach upon the here-to-fore unsullied name of my grandfather, that evidently must rest there. If the name of Joseph Sampson Delmage has no legal claim in his family records, or to suppose that "Joseph" had been betrayed by his brethren and sold into Egypt, and to cover up the crime they now present the coat that he should have worn as evidence that he was no more. It matters very little to me what my family history has been, for I am well advanced in years, but my family still possessing the high spirit peculiar to their race, would like to have learned all that was possible of their family history. This alone was the object in view when the correspondence first began.

Thanking you in behalf of my daughter, who is now Mrs. F. E. Fawcett of Cleveland Ohio, U.S. And thanking you on my own behalf for your kindness, I remain

Most sincerely yours,
W. J. Delmage.

Three hundred Methodists gathered in Limerick, Ireland, for impressive ceremonies to mark the 200th anniversary of the Philip Embury- Barbara Heck departure, and the beginning of Methodism on the American Continent. Services in charge of the Methodist of Ireland were held in Treaty Park at the Merchant's Quay from which the ship "Perry" sailed, and where flowers were cast on the waters, and prayers of thanksgiving said. Then at the estate of the Earl of Dunraven site of an Early Methodist Church where Wesley Preached, and finally at Ballingrave, (this last V may be an N) Barbara Heck's home. Mr. J. A. B. Dulmage, Smith's Falls, Ontario, a descendent of one of the families accompanying Barbara Heck to the United States and later to Canada, with Mrs. Dulmage, attended the pilgrimage. Later they visited old scenes, and saw a church register containing many names of the original Palatine families, common now in Canada.

Palatinate (pulatin) Ger. Pfalz (pfalts) two regions of Germany. They are related historically but not geographically. The Rhenish or Lower Palatinate (Gerhempfalz or Niederpfalz, often called simply the Palatinate, extends from the left bank of the Rhine and borders in the south of France, and in the West on the Saar Territory. It belonged to Bavaria until 1945, but became 1946 a district 2111 square miles, population 958,503 of the newly created state of Rhineland-Palatinate, under French occupation; Neustadt an der Hardt is the capital; Ludwigshafen, Kaiserslautern, Pirmasens and Speyer are the chief cities. It is a rich agricultural region famed for its wines. The upper Palatinate (Ger Oberpfalz is the province 3,724 square miles, population 888,522 of N.E. Bavaria separated in the East from Czechoslovakia by the Bohemian Forest. Regensburg is the Capital. Agriculture and cattle raising are the chief occupations. The name of the two regions came from the office known as count palatine, a title used in the Roman Byzantine and Holy Roman Empires and elsewhere, notably in England, Hungary and Poland. The rights of office varied, but in general it may be said that the palatine had superior judicial functions, and enjoyed privileges superior to those of other nobles. Emperor Frederick I Bestowed (1156) the title count Palatine on his brother Conrad, who was in possession of territories on both sides of the Rhine. More extensive than the present Rhenish Palatinate, these territories include the northern part of Modern Baden, but not the bishopric of Speyer and other enclaves in the Palatine lands west of the Rhine. When Conrad's line died out, the Palatinate passed (1214) to the Bavarian Wittelsbach dynasty. The Wittelsbachs also enlarged their holdings along the Bonheim border, which were constituted as the Upper Palatinate. From the 14th century until 1777 the Wittelsbach holdings were split between the two main lines of the family; the senior line held the two palatinates, the junior line held Bavaria. The electoral vote (see electors) alternated at first between the two lines, but was settled (1356) by the Golden Bull of the counts palatine, henceforth known as electors palatine. Their territories were called the Electoral Palatinate 1 Ger Kurpfalz. Elector Rupert became emperor in 1400. After his death the Palatinate line divided into several collateral branches, which held territories of their own. The direct line was succeeded (1559) by the counts palatine of Simmern who in turn were succeeded by the dukes Palatine of Sulzbach 1742. The Rhenish Palatinate flourished in the 15th and 16th centuries, and its capital Heidelberg was a center of the German Renaissance and Reformation. The election in 1619 of Elector Frederick V (see Frederick the Winter King) as king of Bohemia precipitated the 30 Years war in which the Palatinate was ravaged both by the Imperial forces under Tilly and by the Protestant army under Mansfield. A border Country of the Rhenish Palatinate was to suffer several more devastations in the wars of the 17th and 18th centuries. The Upper Palatinate and the electoral vote were taken from Frederick and transferred to Bavaria, but the Peace of Westphalia 1648 a new vote was created for Frederick's successor Charles Louis. The Palatinate Newburg line acquired (1666) the contested duchies of Julich and Berg but, after the accession (1685) to the Electoral Palatinate, became involved in the War of the Grand Alliance with Louis XIV who ordered the devastation (1688-89) of the Rhenish Palatinate.

In 1720 the capital was transferred to Mannheim. The failure 1777 of the Bavarian line united all Wittelsbach lands except the duchy of Zweibrücken under Elector Charles Theodore. After the war of the Bavarian Succession (1777-79) the succession of Bavaria the Palatinate of Julich and Berg was settled on the Palatinate-Birkenfeld line which held Zweibrücken. However when Duke Maximilian of Zweibrücken acceded 1779 the palatine lands west of the Rhine had been conquered by France in the French Revolutionary Wars. In 1803 Maximilian ceded the Palatine lands East of the Rhine to Baden, Hesse and Nassau, but in 1806 he became king of the much enlarged Bavaria, and at the Congress of Vienna 1815 he recovered a part of Rhenish Palatinate West of the Rhine including Speyer and other enclaves. Several districts were awarded to Prussia and Oldenburg. The Upper Palatinate was increased by the addition of Regensburg which replaced Amberg as capital. Both the Rhenish & the Upper Palatinate became integral parts of Bavaria.

This is to certify that I John Orser, the Son of Solomon Orser, who came from the United States to Canada at the close of the Revolutionary War. I have often heard of my father speak of the fortune belonging to us in Holland. He tells the story as follows, that this money decends to us through marriage, that a man by the name of VanVarneveld, of this name I am not entirely sure, was sent out as Viceroy, by the Holland Government, to rule over the Colonies, and around New York City, that the vessel encountered heavy storms on her way out, that Van Varneveld was very ill, and died in a few days after the vessel reached New York, leaving his wife a widow, and his two children (girls), that through treachery all trace of them for a time was destroyed, and they were left destitute. That the two girls, namely Anne and Martha, grew to womanhood, and married, one to a Jones, and the other to an Orser, that the one marrying a Jones, raised a son called Arthur, who went to Holland, and made known the existence of his grandfather's property, that Lord Dunscomb was sent out by the Holland government for them, that the heirs were all called together by Dunscomb, and were getting ready to go to Holland when hostilities commenced, and Dunscomb was obliged to return without them.

My father Solomon went down to New York with his father Joseph and saw Dunscomb, and were acknowledged as the chief heirs, that Joseph and his family, consisting of his wife and five sons, Arthur, Isaac, Solomon, Gilbert and Gabriel, and his two daughters, Phebe and Rachel came to Canada about the year 1782, That eldest brother John remained in the states. I have also heard that heirs of Van Varneveld have been advertised for, from time to time, but have not seen any to last January 1878, when an advertisement appeared in the Daily Globe of the 18 inst, stating that there was $11.000.000 left to Arthur Orser, and his heirs, in Holland.

John Orser age 70 years.

Solomon Orser age 73 years.

I hereby certify that the foregoing to be a true statement of the Holland estate of our heirship.

John Orser

I Solomon Orser, son of Isaac Orser, here certify that this statement is correct.

WILLIAMS FAMILY GENEALOGY

Compiled by

Alice Adelaide Delmage Fawcett, July 1966

Two brothers, Oscar Van Varnvault, and William VanVarnvault came to New York from Holand. The name VanVarnvault was dropped by the brothers. Oscar took his Christened name of Oscar or Orser or Oser as a surname, and became the founder of the Orser or Oser family.

William took the name of Williams, for the family name, and became the founder of the Williams' family.

As a child I often heard my grandmother, Easter Williams tell this fact about her ancestors, and that they had a fortune in Holland. The Williams family came to Ontario from New York, and were United Empire Loyalists. The first one we know was Albert John Williams, who first settled in the township of Fredericksburg, and who between 1800 and 1804 moved from Fredericksburg, and settled on lot 25, in the first concession of Camden Township, and the lot adjoining it in the second concession. It is stated that he was the first white actual settler at Clark's Mills (now known as Camden East), of whom there is still preserved a complete record. Change of his residence is approximately fixed, as one of his children was baptized in 1800 at his old home in Fredericksburg, while the next baptism in the same family describes him, as of Clark's Mills, and the ceremony as performed in 1804. The deed of this property is dated 1807, to Alberj Williams. ~~Albert~~ John Williams built his first house at Clark's Mills, on the South bank of the Napanee River, for the reason, that at that time there was not any bridge across the stream. Later he built an old fashioned Dutch House, on the north bank, which in time gave place to another frame house built by his son James, who succeeded to his father's estate. Our line comes through this son James, who in turn left this property to his son, Lorenzo Dow Williams, who built an imposing brick farm residence, with white granite trim, and was three stories high, and wood furnace heated. Alice Delmage can remember when Lorenzo Dow drew the granite from his farm in Kenebec for the trim which must have been in the early 1880's. When Lorenzo Dow's only son Sidney Lorenzo Williams married Edith Saul, this mansion was divided, and Dow's Family occupied the east side, which faced towards the village, while Sidney and Edith lived on the West side until their deaths. Eliza Empey Williams, Dow's wife, lived to be ninety-three, and her eldest child Alice lived with her. Florence the other unmarried sister was a nurse in New York City, who came home frequently for several weeks each summer, until she too came home to help nurse her mother. Alice died three years after her mother in 1936, but Florence continued to live in the home until her death. Then Sydney's son Earl bought the mansion, and much of the land, and had a radio repair shop in the north West side of the building, until he died about 1861.

Some year's previous Sydney's other son had rebuilt the James Williams house, and in 1967 was still living in it, with his wife Maude Russell a school teacher. Both houses are still standing, but the mansion has been taken over by the Church of England as an old people's residence, beginning about the fall of 1864 Or 5.

Albery John Williams was married twice. but no children by the second marriage, but a family of a dozen children by his first wife who was Catharine McNab. Of these children, William Delmage and Alice Williams could recall only the names of nine and thought the rest must be dead. Their names will be found listed in the following genealogy. The second wife's name is not known, but it is said she put the three unmarried daughters out of the home when she came in to occupy the home.

Following are a few remark's told about George Williams. He was a very pious boy. When he was about twelve , he was sent on horse back, to the grist mill with a bag of corn to be ground for food. On the way home the foot path lead through a dense forest, over run with wolves. He knew it would be night when he came to the woods, the trees were so close that he feared they would rub the bags of corn meal off his horse, because it was very dark. He prayed for his preservation. As he entered the woods, the moon came out very brightly from under the clouds, lighting the way to his home.

I think Charles was born between 117 Samuel and 118 Lorenzo Dow.
Charles died at the age of twenty-two through an accident, in a saw mill.
His heavy homespun wool shirt sleeve caught in the saw knife, and tore until it came to the neck band, which would not give. He was drawn into the machine, and lost his arm at the shoulder, and died a few hours later.

113 Sarah Williams (called Sally) Lived with her brother Lorenzo

Dow Williams ~~Kate~~ brother in Camden East. She was a tall slight girl like her sister Easter. I can remember seeing her going by to Peter's.

Easter would say, what is the matter with that woman she doesn't stop to see me as she hurries by, going to Peters, who lived in the next house West. They were good friends, but she and Peter were nearer of age, and she felt if she stopped she would not get to Peter's.

111Milton kept store in Croyden, Ontario. Alice Delmage can remember his wife, Aunt Rachel (Rachael) She was living in 1890 and was troubled with asthma. Alice was visiting with her daughter Millie(Mrs. Atkinsin Wilde, and had gone with Mrs. Wilde to dig potatoes for dinner. Alice found a big night crawler, and decided to take it home to use for bate to go fishing in Salmon river. Alice was carrying it in her fingers, and every few seconds Mrs. Wilde would say" Alice I believe it is a snake." Then I would hurl it as far ahead of me as I could. By the time we would get to the worm, she would have Alice persuaded it was a fish worm again. This was repeated all the way until we got to Aunt Rachael's, where we stopped to visit with her. She was sitting in a chair on the lawn. By thistime it ~~Alice decided~~ happened again and the worm was hurled across the lawn. They both tried to persuade Alice it was not a snake, but she refused to pick it up again, so the poor worm went free. Rachael Rombough Williams suffered with asthma. Her husband was dead, and Joseph Hinch was clerking and running her store, which was general merchandise. Joe had a withered left arm, so he never worked much on his father's farm, and he was just a real young man when he had his first work in Croyden helping his Aunt.

112h Joseph Sampson Delmage and 112 Easter Williams (Delmage lived in Camden East Ontario Canada from their marriage in 1834 to the spring of 1840 when they moved to the property which they had purchased when William was born. Having two small children they decided not to move out in the wilderness, as their friends called this property, until March first of 1840. William was put in a barrel in the arms of his 16 year old Uncle Sam Williams. The barrel was tied to the lumber waggon, and Joseph drove the oxen while Easter tripped along the path made by earlier pioneers. Being young they had not thought to line the barrel with a quilt, and Sam was well battered up before they reached lot 23 in the third concession of Camden Township, which they were to make their home. They wanted to get things ready early so when the weather warmed they would be settled and could carry on Spring work. This land had a log house and some barn stables etc. There was a total of four acres cleared, one lying across the road where they later built their residence. About 1837 or Eight William raised this lovely old frame house and veneered it with brick, and in 1864 and 5 his daughter Edith M Delmages had it further improved by removing the old pantry and wash room and a new kitchen, and Utility room added, and also added two bathrooms, a furnace. In 1967 it is a large liveable home with every convenience. Not all the land was purchased but later William owned the 200 acre block. His parents were hard working pioneers, and Joseph had it all cleared and fenced in fields except a lovely woods which had been preserved for fuel and maple sugar making. This was later destroyed by fire. Joseph had blue eyes and light hair. He was a christian and a fluent speaker. He did not have any Irish brogue, although he was born there. He was square shouldered but not heavy but very strong. He would carry 200 pounds of sugar or pork up stairs alone. One winter Joseph had a lot of grain ~~and~~ stolen from his barn. He did not even tell his wife. A few weeks later he met a man on the road as he was taking a grist to the mill. They stopped to have a friendly chat. During conversation the man said "I was sorry to hear about your loss of so much grain." "Yes" said Joseph, "And you are the very man who took it." "You are the only man that knows it was taken." I had not even told my wife. It took the neighbor so by surprise that he confessed, and paid Joseph for his grain. Joseph was not slow by a good deal.

Note- The above family of William and Minetta Delmage were all born on the original farm of Joseph S. Delmage, which William inherited, and part of which he ~~inherited~~ purchased. Like his parents Wm. was a hard worker. His ambition was to be a surgeon, but being the only son he was required to remain on the homestead with his parents. Once when his little daughter Julia fell on the stone steps, cutting a jagged wound in her forehead, he sewed the bad laceration himself, fearing if he took her to their doctor, he might disfigure her face. The scar was scarcely noticeable, and most people meeting her did not know it was there, because he had done such an excellent and careful repair.

When William and Minetta were married a cousin lived with his parents. Frances Augusta Peterson was twelve years of age. Her parents had both died of typhoid when she was nine. She continued to live in the home until her marriage. Joseph died suddenly about fifteen months after William's marriage. After that Easter ate at William's table but she always had her own room and bedroom, when she wished to be quiet by herself.

The spring Alice was six months old father brought John Emanuel Kirkpatrick then about six years home. His parents also had died. John was like an older brother to us but he died of tuberculosis on his 17th Birthday. He is buried in the family plot in Newburgh.
